TOYS FOR TOTS FROM THE TROOPS

29 Palms, California- The formation of 1,626 Marines seemed to go on forever as they poured out of the Marine Corps Communications-Electronics School during the Toys for Tots Run this past December.

Nearly every Marine carried toys ranging from balls, action figures and board games— one Marine even rode a bicycle. The toys were collected for the Toys for Tots program, which provides less-fortunate families with the means to give their children Christmas gifts.

Toys for Tots volunteers waiting in their dress blue uniforms guided the Marines to a group of trucks where they deposited their donations. As the formation passed, the toys were handed off to the volunteers and placed in the vehicles.

“We tried to set up guidelines so the Marines wouldn’t purchase the same exact toys,” said Master Gunnery Sgt. Anthony Russell, “The run was mandatory, but buying a toy was optional for the Marines,” he said. “It was amazing how many Marines went out and bought toys.”
